The following is a talk presented by Richard Sacks, on reclaiming science and reversing genomicide prior to streaming his “posthumous interview” with Dr. Moulden. Please send comments and questions to: richard@globalleadersconsulting.com

Fellow delegates to this very special symposium,

We are here to talk about “reclaiming science,” and “reversing genomicide.” What exactly does that mean? Reclaiming science from what? To understand the answer to that question, we have to shake off our complacency, and the blinders we have put on from years of operating according to customary ways of communication, throw away euphemisms and filters of political correctness, and actually look around at what is going on.

Humanity and the entire biosphere are hanging on the edge of annihilation, and it is not an accident. It is the result of carefully planned assaults, that are coordinated with admirable precision and strategic mastery. Those at the helm of this project are so malevolent, so mentally ill, that they can hide right in plain sight from the public and they will not be seen or understood. Why? Because normal people could not imagine the degree of malice, that those who have crafted this multilayer assault against life, possess.

Do you think that nuclear power is some kind of oversight, in which its designers could not foresee the inevitability of an event like Chernobyl, or like Fukushima? Do you think the promoters of synthetic chemical fertilizers for agriculture were not smart enough to realize that by destabilizing the soil microlife, the fertilizers would make the plants susceptible to attack by insects and disease and thereby make pesticides seem like a necessity, when the insects moved in to eliminate the unfit plants, doing their job to protect the viability of the various species? Did you think that the inventors of GMO's could not figure out that their spread would wipe out normal life on our planet, first plants, then trees, then animals and us? Did you think that the scientists who gave us smart phones and smart meters and cell towers and wifi, did not understand that these things would give us cancer and many other diseases by interfering with the delicate electrical currents of the body? Did you think that the medical geniuses that gave us a system of "health care" based on consumption of toxic chemicals they call "medicine" did not know that doing this would slowly kill us, instead of making us healthy? Did you think government health agencies and the medical industry actually thought fluoride acids put into our drinking water would help our teeth, and were unaware of the use of fluoride by the Germans and Russians in world war II to make prisoners docile and incapable of resistance? Did you think that the governments and corporations that picked up on and promoted the insane idea of preventing disease by injecting it past the body's normal protective barriers, just got fooled and didn't know vaccination did not prevent disease, EVER, that there is no correlation between antibody count and real life immunity, and that vaccines only maimed and killed people (especially children)?

No, the powers that be, and the social engineers at the top of all these programs and others, are not that stupid. They just hope that YOU are. And that's the purpose of what "higher education" has become – to make SURE you are, by drowning you in complexity, arrogance, narrow-minded "specialization" of focus, and a new vocabulary of fancy multi-syllable words that make you sound brilliant, when you're talking impressive nonsense, with new letters and titles after your name.

They knew that nuclear power would eventually make life on Earth impossible. They knew Von Leibig's chemical fertilizers would ruin the soil, and the web of life. They knew GMO's would irrevocably ruin the gene pool of species. They knew smart phones, smart meters, cell towers and wi fi would give us cancer and make us susceptible to a myriad of other degenerative diseases, while advancing Agenda 21 and the plan of total global surveillance and control. They knew drug medicine was a deadly scam, even before the Rockefeller and Carnegie Institutions unleashed their scheme to make it the dominant world system of “health care.” They knew fluoride never helped anyone’s teeth, but was a powerful psychotropic drug, ideal for managing the masses. And yes, they knew vaccines had never prevented disease, but would produce generations of sick children and adults too weakened and confused to resist domination by the rulers. No, they are not stupid, except in one way, we will get to in a moment.

So now we can begin to see what happened to science, why a symposium like this would talk about reclaiming it, and from what. What to reclaim science from is corruption. Countries have been taken over, all over the world, by a ruling “elite,” as they call themselves, who use the leverage of money, via the corrupt and criminal central banks, to control governments that pretend to represent the people. But they really represent those who pay and control them. And the controllers are smart. They put mostly people in top government positions that they can control through blackmail. Then they will do as they are told, voting on bills they don’t even read and taking the money, avoiding being exposed for what they have become.

So where does science fit in? Science has become a powerful religion in the modern world. In what sense do I call it a religion? In the sense that you are just supposed to believe it, and never question what it says. “Scientists” are hired by global corporations and governments, including health agencies, to “prove” that what they are doing is safe and good for you. If you disagree, you are unscientific, and essentially a heretic. They will destroy your reputation, and if necessary kill you. That is how I mean it.

So scientists who get the requested results in their experiments, showing that GMO’s are safe and beneficial, vaccines are safe and effective, nuclear power is environmentally sound, that cell phones are safe, that chemical fertilizers help feed the world, those scientists keep their jobs. Otherwise they get fired and blackballed. So because few scientists want to lose their incomes and leave their families without a way to survive, they adjust their standards and justify their actions to themselves. They lie.

So we find ourselves in a situation where this kind of corruption is part of a serious program to destroy life on our planet, and those in the top positions of government and its partner global corporations are the perpetrators. They use science to keep the public ignorant of what they are really doing. And most of the scientists themselves have even become ignorant of the situation, so self-impressed with their complexity and special language, degrees and association memberships, that their common sense is gone. This is not a superficial problem.

So what do we do? Coming to a conference like this one, just to add to your list of conferences attended and go on with business as usual is not intelligent, at this point in the game, given the reality of the world situation. Time is running out. Our rulers, those who have corrupted science as part of their overall agenda, know that humanity will reach its breaking point, and probably sooner rather than later. They very much hope that we will respond to desperation with violent rebellion, which they can then reasonably quell with lethal force. This is why they are working worldwide to destabilize societies and cause financial collapse, because these things lead to “social unrest” and violence, seeming to justify increasingly harsh tyranny, the next stages in the plan.

It is our responsibility not just to see the role of science in facilitating this global crime against humanity, but to see also our responsibility as human beings to reverse the trajectory of this crime before it is too late. How do we do that? Clearly not by force, that is the eventuality that our rulers have bet on and prepared for. The weaponry they have waiting for us is many decades ahead of what we are aware of, and they are so anxious to use it on us.

But there are other ways to reclaim science from this type of corruption and fraud, and there are other ways as human beings that we can help to heal the world and set positive forces in motion that the malevolent rulers cannot stop.

I am the radio host of a health program that broadcasts every week worldwide. A little over a year ago, our show did our first ever “posthumous interview” with a brilliant Canadian brain specialist, MD PhD, named Andrew Moulden. It had to be posthumous, because Dr. Moulden had openly declared that vaccination was a complete and deadly fraud, and he was showing the public how to recognize the damage. That could not be allowed, and he died in 2013, after having his efforts violently ended. I felt that he should be interviewed on our show anyway, and such brilliance should be heard by more people. So I got some of his recorded talks, cut them up electronically, and turned them into an interview. I only have time to play you part of it, but the whole thing is available in our archives, at www.lostartsradio.com. After we listen to this clip of the Dr. Moulden Interview, I will tell you my suggestion for what we can do.

[Dr. Moulden clip from “posthumous interview”]

OK, so now you know what Dr. Moulden gave his life for. In a way, it was the same as the subject of this conference, it was to reclaim science. He was brilliant but naïve. He had no real idea of what he was up against and he openly declared his intent to stop the vaccine and drug industries, making them pay for the overwhelming damages to humanity that they had caused, and still cause every day. He thought even they would have some human qualities and that our government would come to its senses and really try to help the people. He was completely wrong. The corruption has gone far deeper.

I have often said that the conspiracy theory people are wrong. Things are much worse than they know, the real conspiracies that are NOT theories, are far more pervasive. The rulers have been able to use money, intimidation, false education, and the prospect of other rewards like prestige and power, to corrupt humanity. Science just reflects that.

India has a breathtakingly awesome legacy of great spiritual teachers who have been telling us for thousands of years, just like real teachers from everywhere else, that the real power is within us. Too often, many of us have not taken them seriously, but just followed them in a religious way, not changing ourselves or doing the inner work to the degree they asked us to do.

Why do I bring this up? Because now is the test time, to see if we remember what the real teachers of wisdom have given us, and if we are ready to live it. No more time to blow away, the world is in danger of dying, and is already dying. It is not too late to save her, to heal the species that are not yet extinct. I will give you some clues to what I am talking about.

Quantum physicists agree with the most advanced Yogis, Swamis and other spiritual masters. What do they say? What appears to be the real world is not solid. It is a holographic projection of our own consciousness. Each one of us has the power point within us, to help heal the world outside. If we get reconnected to the inner current of life, and act from there, through the heart instead of the brain as the controlling center, then we can reconnect to long forgotten abilities we used to consider normal. And why does that matter? Because only those with no malice in them, can access the higher levels of this kind of inner knowledge and power. The controllers of the world know this. So it is their highest priority to make sure that at any cost, we do NOT become self-aware on this inner level, until they have irrevocably destroyed our world. I'm sorry if this sounds too strange, I am speaking based on decades of research and investigation, not only of health and consciousness, but also of the economic and political power structure of the world. What we hold inside each one of us, is their biggest fear. All our attention needs to go now, to reconnecting to who we really are, which will make us powerful healers of the world.

There are some things we need to do, if we are serious about achieving that. We can no longer let any corruption be in our lives or our work. Everything we do has to be honest and kind. No more arrogance, which is always based on self-deception anyway, and what we need is the opposite.

I told you before that there is one way in which those in the ruling power structure are not intelligent and now I will tell you what it is. There is an ancient law of nature, that has been in force since humanity was first created, and even before that. It says this. Whatever we do to, or for, anyone else, comes back to us multiplied. The most powerful truths are very simple. Our rulers are invoking the dark side of that law against themselves, and that is not intelligent. Eventually they will realize that, and experience a shocking change of heart.

But that could take a long time, and we need to do everything we can to heal the world, to reclaim science, to stop and reverse genocide, NOW. I will offer this in closing. We are beings of Spirit, of consciousness, in physical bodies. We are directly connected to great power, that is the ultimate healer of individuals, and of worlds. We don't have to figure out that healing power or invent it, it is already here. By our actions, by our thoughts, by the emotions we harbor, we can invite or block that healing power to operate through us, and through all that we do. Let's become quiet inside, drop all pretense, and look at what our thought and emotional patterns really are. We can re-direct these mantras, these programs, in any way we want, and every intention, every wish, every commitment we make in ourselves, is instantly heard by Spirit, no matter what name you use for it. It responds. This sounds like nothing, but it is very powerful.

The corruption in science which is rampant today, can leave starting today, according to our intent, to our realization of why we are here. We have to be committed to honesty and care for each other, from this moment on. If you do this, every aspect of your work will reflect the change. New kinds of people will be drawn into your circle of contacts. New projects will come up. People within your current contacts will start to act differently. Synchronicities will happen. Higher levels can help us when they see we mean to change. Like a matching donation of everything we are willing to give.

This is a work of love and humility, not degrees, impressive references and complex terminology. Wherever you live and work, whoever are your friends and family and co-workers, they are exactly the people you have to treat with more respect and honesty, starting now, and you need to inspire them by your example. Others will come to your aid. Friends on higher levels are ready to help when they see us change. Everything you do, matters. Every person you meet is exactly the person you need to see at that particular time, to test how you will act toward them, how much real respect you will show. Those you need to meet will come disguised as ordinary people. You will make the connections you need. The apparent separation between us, even the geographical distance that separates us, is not real. Ask for your opportunity to help heal the world. It will be given.

Thank you.
